S. Utahns 'fired up' over plant

KANAB, Utah (AP) — A group of southern Utah citizens, upset because plans were shelved for the Kaiparowits electricity project near here, say they plan to burn actor Robert Redford and others in effigy Saturday for their opposition to the plant.

Redford, owner of a ski resort in northern Utah, appeared on a nationally televised program March 21 to oppose the project. The major sponsors of the plant, Southern California Edison Co. and San Diego Gas and Electric Co., announced Wednesday they were shelving the plant

Sewer bids viewed

The apparent low bid submitted to the Provo City Commission Thursday for expansion of the city's sewage treatment plant was $16.7 million, $1.3 million below the estimated cost.

Eleven bids were submitted and two companies were low bidders on two alternative tax proposals for the plant.

The low bidder was Centric Corporation of Denver, Colo., whose bid was $16,744,000 if the plant is built with filters.

If the city decides to build it without filters, AFB Contractors Inc. of Martinez,

Y guests to be honored at graduation exercises

Three special awards will be presented at BYU's 101st Commencement exercises next Friday at 9:30 a.m. to three men who have given distinguished service to mankind.

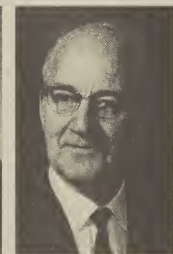

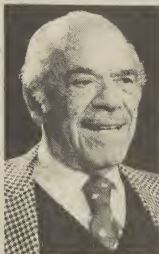

The award and their recipients are as follows: The David O. McKay Humanities Award to Dr. T. Edgar Lyon, noted author and teacher of Salt Lake City, The Franklin S. Harris Fine Arts Award to Frank Capra, world-renowned film director now of La Quinta, Calif.

The Jesse Knight Industrial Citizenship Award to Lewis M. Jones of Bountiful, well-known Southern California and Utah industrialist.

Speaker for commencement services will be Dr. John A. Howard, president of Rockford College in Rockford, Ill. He is the past president of the American Association of Presidents of Independent Colleges and Universities.

After BYU's stand on Title IX of the HEW's regulations was published, Rockford College, along with a dozen other private universities, "lined up to support that act (BYU's stand) of defiance," according to a National Observer story.

As president of a non-sectarian college, Howard expressed pleasure at the stand BYU and Pres. Oaks took regarding the regulations. In the same article, he said, "I think we've reached the point where you're going to see more of this."

The three recipients will be recognized at the Commencement ceremonies in the Marriott Center, followed by formal presentations at three different college convocations later in the day.

Dr. Lyon, who served in the LDS Institute of Religion from 1937 to 1975, has written 186 articles and book reviews that have been printed in wide variety of periodicals and journals. The Salt Lake City native is married to Hermanna Forsberg and they have six sons, including two sets of twins.

He earned his B.S. degree from the University of Utah in 1927, his M.A. degree in 1932 from the University of Chicago, and his Ph.D. degree in 1962 from the University of Utah. He taught high school in Idaho before teaching a year at Ricks College in 1932-33.

Dr. Lyon served a mission for the LDS Church to The Netherlands from 1923-25 and was called by President Heber J. Grant to become mission president there from 1933-37. Active in a variety of Boy Scout positions for many years, Dr. Lyon has served as a guide in the state for both the LDS Church and the State of Utah.

Mr. Capra, a native of Palermo, Sicily, and the youngest of seven children, moved to the United States with his family when he was six years old, settling in Los Angeles.

Capra earned a degree in chemical engineering in 1918 at California Institute of Technology and he taught mathematics in the Army in San Francisco until the WWI Armistice was signed.

Capra spent more than 50 years directing some of the big name stars in what some observers call classic motion pictures. He won Oscars in 1936 and 1938 for "Mr. Deeds Goes to Town" and "You Can't Take It With You." He re-joined the Army during World War II and produced training films for more than 50 American and Canadian universities.

Dr. Jones, a native of Cedar City who has attended BYU, the University of Utah, and Southwestern University, is married to Joanne Fitches and they have four children.

Early in his business career he worked for the Union Pacific Railroad at Sun Valley before becoming a public accountant in Los Angeles in the early 1940's.

Multi-purpose center planned by commission

By MARC HADDOCK
Universe Staff Writer

A citizens' committee was formed today to help formulate plans for a multi-purpose activity center to be built in Provo and used by all Utah County.

The 20-member committee, appointed by the Provo City Commission, had its first official meeting Thursday at noon. Commission members said they envisioned a mall-type structure with a comprehensive library at one end of the mall and a large auditorium at the other.

Commissioner Odell Miner said the proposed center would cost from $8 to $10 million dollars. He said Provo would raise about a third of the center's cost through a bond election.

He also said the city was hoping for some funds from the county, but that most of the funds would be sought from federal programs like the Community Development Block Grant and the National Endowment for the Arts.

The committee will be responsible to devise the method for financing the project as well as to find the site location and to determine the final building design.

Mayor Russell Grange said the commission was looking for a three-block area between 300 South and 500 North and University Avenue and 500 West to house the center. One of the blocks would be used for the building and the other two would be for parking.

Besides housing the library and the auditorium, Grange said parts of the building might be used as office space for the Chamber of Commerce and other groups.

One possible use cited by the commission was as a convention center. Gordon Bullock, executive vice president of the Provo Chamber of Commerce, said some groups have expressed interest in Provo to hold conventions, but were discouraged because of inadequate services.

Grange said he thought the center would complement, rather than compete, with the proposed Four Seasons base site planned for the land near the Utah State Hospital.

"We see this as being more comprehensive than the Four Seasons base site plans," Grange said.

Besides conventions, Miner mentioned that the facility might also be used for activities from indoor rodeos to beauty pageants.

The 20-member committee is made up of several groups, including the Provo Commission, the county commission and the mayors from many of the surrounding areas.

Commissioner J. Earl Wignall said the mayors of Payson, Lehi, Pleasant Grove, Spanish Fork, Orem and Springville would serve on the committee. Other committee members include several prominent citizens from Provo.

"All of the mayors have expressed their support and they ... are serving on the committee," Wignall said.

Grange said the city had decided to build the center because the city and the county had come to a point "where we must provide an additional level of service."

B parking stickers anybody?

B-zone parking permits will be made available to any student on a first-come, first-served basis one week after a semester begins, effective fall semester, 1976.

These permits will be available until 4,000 are sold, according to BYU Security Chief Robert Kelschaw.

The Campus Traffic Committee decided Thursday that B-zone stickers will be made available to upperclassmen with 65 or more credit hours two weeks prior to registration and one week after the semester begins.

The Security Patrol Division will then monitor the parking lots to determine if the 4,000 limit on permits can be extended without over filling the lots, Kelschaw said. The cost for the B-zone permits will be increased from $6 per semester to $10 per semester.

Easter message

Pres. Kimball: 'seek the spirit'

With the coming of Easter this Sunday, President Spencer W. Kimball of the LDS Church urged people everywhere to "reach for the miracle of a rebirth of the spirit."

President Kimball also called the resurrection of Jesus Christ the "most significant miracle of all time."

In his Easter message, President Kimball said, "That first Easter, the resurrection of our Lord Jesus Christ, is the greatest and most significant miracle of all time. He whose lifeless, broken body had been removed from the cross at Calvary had risen. It was not symbolic rising from the dead. It was real."

"In these sophisticated times, there are some who doubt the reality of the resurrection. Yet, that miracle has been attested by a multitude of reputable witnesses. There are at least ten recorded appearances of Jesus between his resurrection and ascension," said President Kimball.

"My appeal this Easter is for this troubled world to find a rebirth, a renewal, to turn to the teachings of the Prince of Peace. Too many are turning to a new sexual morality which is nothing but the old immorality of Sodom and Gomorrah. There is too much cheating in government, in business, in labor, in society generally."

"The home, the bulwark of a strong and happy people, is in too many instances being forsaken in pursuit of pleasure. Divorce, with all its heartaches and hindrances, is rising alarmingly."

"I appeal to each of you, for your own happiness and inner peace, as well as for the strength of the world, to each for the miracle of a rebirth of the spirit. I give you my witness that you will find a fullness of joy this Easter and always ... if you will put into your life the divine message of our Lord and Master, Jesus the Christ."

Soviet dissidents sentenced

MOSCOW — A 35-year-old Russian human rights activist was sentenced Thursday to five years' exile from Moscow, another political rebel got 2½ years at hard labor and Nobel Peace Prize winner Andrei D. Sakharov and his wife got retaliatory beatings by police, dissident sources reported.

The exile sentence for Adrei Tverdokhlebov, the secretary of the Soviet branch of Amnesty International, amounts to two years because of time already spent in jail.

Personal income taper off

WASHINGTON — The growth in Americans' total personal income tapered off for the second month in a row during March, the government said Thursday.

The Commerce Department said personal income climbed at an annual rate of $7.6 billion, over six-tenths of a percent, to an annual rate of $13.3 trillion after adjustment for seasonal variations.

Railroads study possible merger

WASHINGTON — The parent companies of two of the nation's more profitable railroads said Thursday they are studying a possible merger that would create a rail system stretching into 25 states.

If completed, the merger of the Southern railroad and the Missouri Pacific railroad would be the first such major reshuffling since the ill-fated joining in 1968 of the Pennsylvania railroad and the Central of New York into the Penn Central.

Former aides say Hughes will exist

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Howard Hughes, intending to leave his fortune to a medical foundation, wrote a will with alternate versions for each page, put it together in secret and placed it in a Hollywood safe deposit box, his former right-hand man said Thursday.

"That... will is in existence," said Noah Dietrich, who left Hughes' employ in 1957 after 35 years of service. "I don't know what happened to it. I don't trust some of these people at the Hughes organization."

Actor to burn in effigy for Kaiparowits stand because of increased costs, delays and potential legal and legislative challenges. The third sponsor, Arizona Public Service Co., said it could not continue alone.

Members of "ALIVE," an organization of citizens who had backed construction, met Thursday with Kane County and Kanab City officials and announced they would hold rallies Friday and Saturday night to enlist support to seek legal advice for any future powerplant project that may be proposed.

They said they would burn Redford and leading members of the Sierra Club in effigy in a county courthouse parking lot.

"ALIVE" stands for "American League for Industry and Vital Energy." The group sent a contingent of local residents to Washington, D.C. several weeks ago to lobby for approval of the plant, which would have meant an economic boost to the southern part of the state.

China to get envoy from India

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — India took a first step Thursday toward a possible rapprochement with China, saying it will send an ambassador to Peking for the first time since the two countries fought a border war in 1962.

A rapprochement could have a major impact throughout the region, where Peking and Moscow compete for the friendship of developing Asian nations.

A top career diplomat, K. R. Narayanan, 55, was named as the new ambassador. He is expected to take up his post in about two months.

Indian officials said Peking had agreed to accept Narayanan, a former ambassador to Thailand and Turkey and head of the Foreign Ministry's China division, but declined to say whether China had nominated its own envoy to India.

Foreign Minister Y. B. Chavan told parliament India understands that Peking will reciprocate and send an ambassador to New Delhi.

There was no immediate reaction from Peking, but the Chinese have said in the past that India must take the initiative in restoring relations because New Delhi had acted first in withdrawing its envoy to Peking July 1961.

The Chinese pulled their ambassador from New Delhi in the summer of 1962, a few months before Indian and Chinese armies clashed in a three-week war over disputed territory. China seized large chunks of Indian land, but later gave most of it back.

There was a fresh border clash, which both sides blamed on the other, last October. Four Indian soldiers were reported killed.

Program Bureau seeks technicians

The Program Bureau is looking for technicians to accompany the groups on their summer tours and to work in student assistantships.

According to Gene Parrish, student coordinator for the bureau, technicians are needed immediately for the Lamanite Generation, Sounds of Freedom and the Young Ambassadors. Interested persons should fill out applications in the Program Bureau Office, 117 ELWC.

Appointments for interviews should be made with the secretary. Interviews will begin Tuesday.

Parrish said student assistantships are available on two levels: 1—with the Program Bureau as a whole and 2—with the individual performing groups.

Student assistantships are being offered for business manager, choreographer, public relations coordinator, technical services manager and music production coordinator.

Assistantships for the groups separately are costume designer, truck driver, business manager, public relations director, technical director and music arranger.

Easter's aspects Christian, pagan

NE JOHNSON
Staff Writer

Every-day Saints, resurrection is the center of our religious worship in the church, and we're grateful that we can join with all people in professing our faith in Him."

Christ is the central event of Easter for Christians, but many other traditions have also evolved around Easter.

New clothes are often associated with Easter. According to Margaret S. Childs, assistant professor in the Clothing and Textiles Department, we often associate new status (graduation, job, etc.) She said she thought it was logical to think in those terms and associate the newness of clothes with new hope and newness of the resurrection.

Easter bunnies seem to be a part of Easter, and Thursday there were a few hopping around campus. One who was caught and interviewed in the Wilkinson Center said he came by every year just because it was Easter. Later he said he was a BYU student who would later be appearing at stores.

Easter eggs also are a part of Easter, and almost every year since Rutherford B.

Hayes began the custom in 1878, Easter egg-rolling on the White House lawn is a tradition.

Different days

According to Cahill, "what is important is not what day Easter falls on, but the event that is commemorated."

This has not always been the case, though. P.W. Wilson in "Encyclopedia Americana" explained that the date to celebrate Easter has been a major problem in churches for a long time.

It was held on different places until Constantine the Great held a council in 325 A.D. and decided it would be held on the first Sunday after the full moon following the vernal equinox (March 21).

Because of this method for determining Easter, it can fall anywhere between March 22 and April 25. This variation has caused some people to push for a fixed Easter.

Students warned

of textbook thieves

Students should be extra careful during finals week not to leave textbooks unattended, according to BYU Security Chief Robert Kelshaw.

Text book theft increases significantly during the bookstore's buy-back period, he said. Students should take extra precaution.

Lehi student wins Y business award

Winner of the 1976 Distinguished Graduate award for the College of Business is Reginald Christensen of Lehi, Utah.

As the top graduate from BYU's College of Business, Christensen is also the recipient of an award from the National Business Education Association (NBEA), according to Dr. Harold Smith, chairman of the Department of Business Education at BYU.

The NBEA award carries with it a one-year professional membership in the NBEA, Dr. Smith said.

KBYU to air Y graduation

BYU's 101st commencement exercises will be televised live by KBYU-TV 11 April 23 at 9:30 a.m. Channel 11 will repeat the telecast that night at 9 p.m. and April 25 at 4:30 p.m.

Commencement speaker will be Dr. John A. Howard, president of Rockford College (Illinois) who will also be awarded the honorary doctor of law degree at that ceremony.

Receiving the honorary doctor of religious literature degree will be Dr. Sidney B. Sperry, retired BYU faculty member and scholar of scriptural languages and literature.

Ocean future site of waste deposits?

By PETER BREWER
Associated Press Writer

WOODS HOLE, Mass. (AP) — The dark, cold ocean bottom, may someday swallow the growing piles of radioactive waste from nuclear reactors.

A consortium of oceanographers and other scientists have been working on the burial of atomic wastes in the sea floor sediment or underlying rock for more than two years. Though cautious, the scientists say the idea looks promising.

"We have not found any information that tells us we ought to stop the study," said Dr. Charles D. Hollister of the Woods Hole Oceanographic Institution. "The concept may be sound, but we don't want to say we have the answer."

The isolated seabed areas being studied — under the north central Pacific and the north Central Atlantic — were not affected by the last ice age, 10,000 to 25,000 years ago, Hollister said.

"In the ocean floor we have a continuous record of the environment for 10 million years," he said. "It's a unique history book."

"If we can look back and see no evidence of environmental change for the last 10 million years, we have a better chance to convince ourselves there will be no change for the next half million years."

He said scientists expect to know enough by 1985 to say whether ocean floor burial of atomic waste is feasible or not.

Prof. Henry Kendall of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, a leader of the Union of Concerned Scientists, said the seabed disposal idea is relatively new, but worth study since some other plans fell apart.

"We are very much troubled at this point 25 years into the nuclear age that we find ourselves with no satisfactory way to dispose of nuclear waste," he said.

The Atomic Energy Commission had to abandon a plan to dump atomic trash in an old Lyons, Kan., salt mine and, according to Kendall returned to "building above ground crypts that would require permanent surveillance for very long periods of time."

He said there have already been leaks of stored radioactive material in New York, Georgia, Kentucky, Colorado, Idaho and Washington.

A group of 2,300 U.S. scientists concerned about the increasing quantities of dangerous atomic wastes asked President Ford and Congress recently to hold up nuclear power development until disposal and other safety issues are solved.

The United States alone now has 56 atomic power plants with an estimated 2,000 tons of stored, burned-out fuel. If development of these plants continues, the amount of dangerous nuclear material piling up may top that every year, scientists say.

Studies of earth's "plates," enormous chunks of the planet's crust which are still moving, indicate that the most stable place to bury atomic junk safely is the floor of north central Pacific Ocean or possibly the north central Atlantic. Both are plate centers and are expected to remain stable for at least a million years.

The focus now is on muddy clay sediments, which covers the seabed rock up to several thousand feet, to see how much insulation it provides.

The U.S. Nuclear Regulatory Commission is studying other disposal sites, such as another salt mine in New Mexico, rocketing waste to outer space and burial in deep granite areas or under polar ice.

Phony bills possessed by Utahn

CHEYENNE, Wyo. (AP) — Allen Richard Weideman, 47, of Salt Lake City, has been charged with four counts in connection with the alleged passing and possession of counterfeit $50 bills.

Weideman was arrested Sunday in Rawlins, Wyo., after allegedly passing one of the bills at a service station.

Authorities said the car Weideman was driving contained $2,000 worth of the phony Federal Reserve Notes, and that some of the bills may have been passed in Hanston, Rock Springs and Green River and possibly in other western states.

Weideman made an initial appearance here Tuesday before U.S. Magistrate William Beamon, who set bond at $8,000. Bond wasn't posted and Weideman was jailed.

ELECTRONIC FLASHES

Electronic flashes with automatic or computer control are now into their second generation. The newest, though, hasn't completely worn off. The tiny electric eye in these units, so small it appears ineffective, continues to work wonders.

Computer flashes are controlled by a phototransistor. The phototransistor detects light reflected back from the subject during the photo and when the correct amount of light has been recorded the phototransistor shuts the rest of the power from the flash impulse into a phantom flashtube in the back of the unit and burns it up. All of this happens in an incredibly short time. The flash from one of these units can be as fast as 1/50,000th of a second.

The range of output of these units is quite great. At the extreme of the automatic range, which is 15 feet in the smaller units, the output is 50 times greater than at the minimum 19 inches. This great variation in output only assures that the same amount of light reaches the subject at various distances.

The most advanced of the automatic flashes have thyristor circuits. A thyristor flash works somewhat like the earlier automatic flashes except that the extra power not needed in close range photos is not burned off. This results in extended battery life if many of the pictures are at close range and in faster recycling times.

If you have been frustrated in the past with inconsistent results in flash pictures, as I have, consider one of the automatic flashes. The advantage is more than mere convenience. The results are consistently better than with a manual flash, even if you conscientiously follow the guide numbers.

in third year project,
is excited about

class will do this by teaching certain areas of law that are especially relevant to the average person.

He said one of the emphases is an
of the legal system
and how the courts
are organized.
He also discussed

Greg Sanders, left, Legal Studies project director and Mark Stubbs, projects editor, discuss the new legal rights class to be offered next fall.

of constitutional law including some controversial cases such as abortion, school prayer, busing, polygamy and ways
those laws affect the average person.

Sanders said there will be a
"heavy emphasis on property law," this includes the tax consequence of buying a home, title insurance, and joint tenancy. Consumer matters, such as the effects of credit, will also be discussed.

A number of family-related areas such as wills, and life insurance, and family law

dealing with formations and dissolutions, child custody, and division of property will be featured.

Explanation of terms involved in tax matters, and deductions available to the average citizen will also be discussed, as will business matters including corporate partnership, stock, and anti-trust action.

The final section will discuss the effect administrative agencies have on citizens and their rights before administrative boards.

Sanders emphasized that this is not a class designed for pre-law students or a how-to-do-it class. He said it is a class that would be extremely helpful for the average student. "It will show the pitfalls of what can happen when people are not aware of the law."

At first the class started out to be a 300R University Studies class, Sanders said, but Dr. John L. Sorensen thought it would be more effective in a regular department.

Dr. Sorensen, Department
Chairman for University Studies, said that if the class were taught in his department as a student activity, "they would have to start over every term." Since he would like to see the class continued
he "suggested that the course would be more effectively handled in a regular department, and suggested political science as an appropriate home."

The Political Science Department Chairman, Dr.
Ray C. Hillam, said this was "a good utility course for anyone who should know their rights."

"This is a very successful, practical, and popular course
at other universities," Dr.
Hillam said.

He also emphasized that the law school students would be the actual instructors of the class.

Centennial Celebrities

In April 1945, Belle S.
Spafford was named the general Relief Society president for the church. She served in that position until October 1974.

In an interview Thursday,
she said that "perhaps the greatest challenge young women are facing today is the change in the status of women which has occurred particularly within the last 25 years."

She said it is a real challenge for young women to know what should have priority in their lives.

The church provides guidelines for women to follow in defining their roles, according to Mrs. Spafford.
Both in the scriptures and in the prophets' explanation of the scriptures women can come to understand their role.

"Self-realization and self-esteem are very important in the life of a woman," she said.

A young woman should acquaint herself with the scriptural explanation of her role as well as with the explanations of the prophets, and then use her native
endowments and make use of the opportunities before her, said Mrs. Spafford.

"She should be fortified," Mrs. Spafford said concerning preparation "for realizing her full potential in whatever position life places her in."

Belle S. Spafford
... a woman's role

She also spoke of the importance of organizing time and recognizing priorities. "To me, every minute of every day is important," she said. She explained that the activities to which she devotes her time are so vital to her happiness and well-being and to the happiness and well-being of others that she can't afford to waste her time.

She still gets up early and is often busily working at 5:30 or 6 a.m.

Young women today are seeking real and substantial spiritual values and want their lives to be purposeful, said Mrs. Spafford.

States haggle over water

By DAVID BRISCOE
Associated Press Writer

SALT LAKE CITY (AP) — Governors of Utah, Wyoming and Idaho failed Wednesday to agree on a proposal to allocate 25,000 acre feet of water for expansion of the Woodruff Narrows Reservoir on the Bear River in Wyoming. Holding up the $1 million project is a long-standing dispute among the three states over allocation of water from the river, which snakes across state borders in five places before it empties into Great Salt Lake.

Meet again

The governors agreed to meet again in about 60 days, after water officials from the three states attempt to reach agreement on how much water each state should get. Utah and Wyoming want 100,000 acre feet each for storage and Idaho wants 200,000 acre feet for consumption in addition to what is already being used. Officials, however, agreed these figures might have to be reduced.

An estimated 900,000 acre feet flows into Great Salt Lake. One official said if all the proposed allocations were approved the Bear River would "add up to a mud flat."

Storage

Water officials said the Utah and Wyoming water would be for storage, meaning about 50 per cent of it would be diverted, while the Idaho water all would be diverted.

Rampton told water officials to meet weekly if necessary to iron out the differences. He said if the figures are close enough maybe the governors could "play a game of golf for it."

Idaho frustrated

"Idaho has been frustrated and sometimes confused, but if an allocation for us, directly to our use, can be reached, then this will resolve our need," Andrus said.

He said Idaho did not want to be an obstructionist to the Woodruff project but that the state would decline to sign any agreement to increase storage above the Bear until a broader agreement is reached.

"There's nothing wrong in the theory that we allocate a block of water to Idaho," said Rampton, but he asked whether Utah shouldn't get guarantees in return.

Warning systems cost criticized

WASHINGTON (AP) — Congressional auditors said Wednesday that three systems being developed at a cost of $140 million to warn of enemy attacks and natural disasters appear to be a waste of money.

The General Accounting Office auditors recommended that President Ford take action to develop a single cost-effective disaster and warning plan.

A GAO report suggested that Congress may want to consider cutting off money for three systems now under development until a single plan is coordinated. The agency said a satellite warning system, a high-speed nuclear attack warning system and a teletypewriter system "do not appear to be operationally or economically justified."

It said a $42-million link-up of the Pentagon's National Warning System with the Weather Radio System that has already been selected as

Court dismisses Klan murder case

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (AP) — First-degree murder charges were dismissed Wednesday against three men accused in the Ku Klux Klan "execution" of a black truck driver 19 years ago.

Circuit Court Judge Frank Embry dismissed the charges after ruling the grand jury indictment against the men void because it failed to state specifically the means and methods of the killings.

State attorneys said they would seek a new indictment immediately from a special Montgomery County grand jury.

The indictment was returned March 5 against Sonny Kyle Livingston, 38, Henry Alexander, 46, and James York, 73, charging the three reputed Klan members with the death of Willie Edwards Jr.

The three men were accused of forcing Edwards to jump into the Alabama River on the night of Jan. 23, 1957.

Prosecutors said Edwards, 25, was mistaken for another black truck driver who had supposedly "smiled at" a white woman. The three men were accused of forcing him at gunpoint to jump to his death from the Tyler Goodwin Bridge outside Montgomery.

The body was decomposed when it was recovered three months ago and authorities said the cause of death was uncertain.

Militiamen from Syria Lebanon

WASHINGTON (AP) — Troops are inside Lebanon, and while the United States is being Israel will not react to her security, the State Department said Wednesday. Kissinger said published the total of troops in the country is "grossly inflated." At the same time he said troop movements may be "close to the line" of Israeli security. Kissinger's statement is the first an American has acknowledged the Syrian military presence in Lebanon. Kissinger said the United States would have no outside troops in Lebanon of any kind.

Outdoor barber

Terri Culler, from Farmington, N.M., cuts the hair of Ken Johnson, Glendale, Ariz., outdoors so he won't miss the baseball game being played on the Helaman Hills field.

Kissinger said the United States remains opposed to outside intervention "which carries with it the risk of escalation." He said Syria has introduced some military forces into border areas. "It has not made a major military movement into Lebanon," he said. "But we think that Syrian military movements are getting close to the borderline," of Israeli tolerance, he added. Kissinger said the United States has warned both Syria and Israel to take no "precipitous action" in Israel. Meanwhile, in Jerusalem, Israeli Premier Yitzhak Rabin said, "Israel will take steps in Lebanon only if there is agreement in the government that there is a direct threat to Israel's security."

On other subjects, Kissinger denied that the United States has ever explored the possibility of giving military aid to the People's Republic of China or that it has any plans to do so. —Said he was mistaken when he assured senators that the Ford administration would "acquiesce" to congressional plans to give Israel more military aid funds than the administration requested.

President Ford is threatening to veto the entire military appropriation if Congress includes $550 million for Israel in the three-month transitional period that leads to the new fiscal year on Oct. 1.

3 bandits steel jewelry worth nearly $4 million

PALM BEACH, Fla. (AP) — Three armed bandits caused "nothing but tears" in ritzy Palm Beach Towers after looting the condominium's safe deposit boxes Wednesday and making off with between $3 million and $4 million, police said. "It might be a great deal more," said Police Chief J. M. Gaffney after spending most of the day compiling a list of stolen merchandise. Gaffney said the thieves,

Sugar firm, growers sign

DENVER (AP) — The nation's second largest sugar refinery and the sugar beet growers from five states agreed Wednesday on a three-year crop contract that a company spokesman said would not increase consumer sugar prices.

"Nothing should happen to the price of sugar on the basis of this contract," said Great Western Sugar Co. executive G. Michael Boswell.

But an agriculture marketing specialist said the lengthy and bitter negotiations that led to the agreement would probably mean a reduction in this year's harvest, because growers will be late in getting their crops into the ground. "Normally, about one-third of the beets have been planted by April 15, so we have lost some time," said Erwyn Witte, head of the Colorado Department of Agriculture's division of marketing.

The contract calls for growers to be paid for their 1976 crop as they have in past growing seasons. But beginning with next year, a farmer's payment from the company will depend on the purity of the beets he delivers to Great Western's factories. Formal agreement between the company and an estimated 4,000 growers came after a day of talks following a 5 1/2-hour negotiating session mediated Tuesday night by Colorado Gov. Richard Lamm. Witte said the long labor dispute that delayed planting would damage Colorado's multimillion-dollar sugar industry, although he had no exact estimate of the harm. Officials in the four other states affected by the contract talks, Wyoming, Montana, Nebraska and Kansas, had no immediate estimate on what the dispute would mean to local economies.

Together, the four states and Colorado accounted for about 400,000 acres of beets last year, according to official figures.

Demos talk to editors, yet honor picket lines

WASHINGTON (AP) — Hubert Humphrey and three Democratic presidential candidates ran into a picket line Wednesday, but vowed non-candidate Humphrey got through to steal the show.

Humphrey, often mentioned as a possible compromise candidate this year, was the only one of the quartet to keep his date as a speaker at the American Society of Newspaper Editors convention.

"To prove I am a noncandidate," Humphrey quipped, "the pickets left when they heard I was coming."

But, really, the pickets had withdrawn before Humphrey's arrival in compliance with court order.

All three candidates and Humphrey were asked by a panel of reporters why they had honored a picket line adjudged illegal. The three candidates said they hadn't known about that part when they made the decision.

Members of the National Association of Broadcast Employees and Technicians, on strike against the National Broadcasting Co. since April 1, threw up the picket line in front of the Shoreham-American Hotel in an effort to keep NBC camera crews from covering the event.

"Ethnic purity"

Carter told the editors that the furor over his use of the term "ethnic purity" in relation to residential neighborhood integration had been good for the country by bringing the issue out for discussion.

While Carter has apologized for the term "ethnic purity," he said "I don't have any apology to offer for my position on housing." He said he still thinks the federal government should not deliberately destroy what he now calls the "ethnic character" of neighborhoods.

All three candidates expressed essentially the same stand on the neighborhood issue by saying they opposed discrimination in housing but also disliked having the government breaking up neighborhoods by placing large, low-income housing projects in them.

Reagan mentions weapons

In other political developments:

—Republican challenger Ronald Reagan said in Austin, Tex., that potential enemies should never hear an American leader say there is any weapon in the nation's arsenal that would not be used.

3 speak via phone

Sen. Henry M. Jackson, Rep. Morris K. Udall and former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter, however, did not make it because of the picket line before the Shoreham-American Hotel. They addressed the meeting through a telephone hookup.

When the candidates learned the hotel was being picketed, all three refused to cross the lines. However, they learned later that the National Labor Relations Board had ruled the picketing an illegal secondary boycott and a federal judge had issued a temporary restraining order limiting the pickets to a single entrance.

3 3/4-year extension expected for federal revenue sharing

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee Wednesday approved a three and three-fourth-year extension of the federal revenue-sharing program, which distributes $6.65 billion to state and local governments each year with few federal instructions or controls.

The controversial program, popular with the nation's mayors, county executives and governors but opposed by liberal Democrats in Congress, will be considered by the House Government Operations Committee when Congress returns at the end of April from its Easter recess.

Final approval in the House and Senate — which has not started work on the bill — is expected.

The Ford administration has lobbied for a bill making few changes in the original program, begun as part of former President Richard M.

Nixon's "New Federalism."

The legislation, approved by a unanimous voice vote in the House intergovernmental relations subcommittee, includes expanded civil rights protections, but it does not alter significantly the formula under which $30 billion in revenue-sharing money has been distributed since the program's start in 1972. The original program expires Dec. 31.

The revenue-sharing funding procedures have been revised, eliminating the automatic distribution of the money from a Treasury trust fund.

Instead, the House Appropriations Committee will be required in the program's first year to allocate its entire 3 3/4-year expenses. This procedure was designed to inject some congressional involvement in the federal outlay.

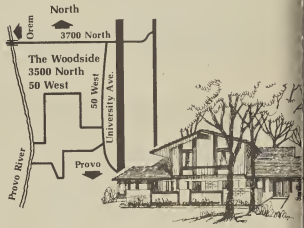

Crowding into a small space might be a great stunt. But it's no way to live!

Remember how people used to crowd into phone booths and VW's? Do you sometimes feel that singles housing also is a little crowded? It doesn't have to be.

Woodside offers an alternative for singles. A house, rather than an apartment building. Plus a separate social center, a private swimming pool, and plenty of grass, flowers and shrubbery. Woodside is what singles housing ought to be.

You can live in Woodside for just $57 per month during spring and summer semesters. Our three and four bedroom townhomes are now being offered at a special rate of $57 to $95 per person, per month. (Based on four people per home.)

If you're tired of wall-to-wall people and building-to-building asphalt, visit our rental information center and tour our model home. We're open daily, except Sunday, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Postmen nominate candidates

ST. GEORGE, Utah (AP) — Utah postmasters held the first of three days of meetings Tuesday to discuss common problems.

Kyle N. Stall, assistant inspector in charge for the postal system's Denver region, spoke on the sanctity of the mail and precautionary measures post offices have to take against burglaries.

Clyde Weeks, postmaster in Orem, and David Weeks, Smithfield postmaster, were nominated as candidates for president of the Utah Chapter of Postmasters. An election is to be held Thursday.

Kay Probst, current president and postmaster of Midway, said training sessions will be conducted Wednesday.

Lorum Stratton, Snowflake, Ariz., representing the national association, also spoke Tuesday, outlining services offered by the national association.

Probst said all but one of Utah's 216 postmasters belong to the association.

Degree' offered in gerontology

By REED RICHINS
Universe Staff Writer

Students completing a bachelors program may receive a certificate in adult development and aging.

Our program, combining classroom with practical training in the field, enables students to receive a certificate from the Mountain Gerontology Center, a national association of schools which is a part of the University of Utah.

Previously required only 12 hours, according to Dr. Phileon B. Jr., assistant dean of continuing and campus coordinator of the Mountain Gerontology Center.

Our course work includes classes in child development and family and health science, plus a special seminar and practical work with the elderly.

Additional hours of electives may be in education, family economics and management, political science, recreation and zoology. Gerontology is one of the fastest growing fields, said Keith Wilson, president of BYU's chapter of the Rocky Mountain Gerontology Student Association.

Some of the careers open to a student trained in gerontology include nursing home administration, recreation therapy, physical therapy, senior citizen coordinators, adult education and specialization in other fields such as law, medicine and architecture, according to Dr. Steven W. Heiner, a professor of health science and member of BYU's Committee on Adult Development and Aging.

Other committee members are Dr. Robinson, chairman, Dr. Evan T. Peterson and Dr. Gary D. Hansen, a professor of family economics and home management.

There has been increased interest in gerontology in the U.S. because of an increase in the number of elderly, said Dr. Robinson. Between 1960 and 1970 the number of people in the U.S. over 75 years of age increased seven times faster than the total population, he said.

This increase has made the elderly a more visible and a more politically active group, causing the institution of numerous programs in their behalf and also increasing career opportunities for those trained in gerontology, Dr. Robinson said.

Y writers to gather for honors

Over $1,500 in awards and a full-time scholarship will be given to outstanding students at the English Award Banquet April 16 in the ELWC Skyroom at 6 p.m.

The banquet is designed to honor the graduating senior class and give recognition to people who have achieved in writing, said Dr. Mable Blanch, associate professor of English. Jean Anne Waterstradt, associate professor of English, will be the featured speaker, said Dr. Blanch.

Miss Waterstradt chose "Behold, the Lord requireth the heart and at willing mind..." as the title for her speech.

Awards given will be the Hart-Larson Poetry Awards, the J. Mannus Jensen Personal Essay Award for Men, the Elsie C. Carroll Personal Essay Award for Women, the Vera Hinkley Mayhew Poetry and Short Story Awards, the Scholarship Achievement Award for Juniors, the P.A. Christensen Award for the Graduate Award for Outstanding Student, the Cracroft-Lambert Fiction Award.

Oaks to address accounting dinner

The BYU chapter of Beta Alpha Psi, a national, professional accounting fraternity, will hold its annual awards and initiation banquet tonight at 6:30 at Provo's Rodeway Inn.

BYU Pres. Dallen H. Oaks will be the featured speaker and will be initiated as an honorary member of Beta Alpha Psi.

The fraternity, which promotes scholastic and professional excellence in accounting, holds the annual banquet to honor students and faculty, said Dennis Reber, president of the BYU chapter.

Four $600 scholarships will be awarded to outstanding accounting students, said Reber. In addition, honorary awards will also be given at the banquet, he said.

Jill Thompson, a junior in accounting from Provo, will receive a $600 scholarship from Arthur Andersen & Co., Gwen M. Warburton, a junior in accounting from Renton, Wash., will receive a $600 stipend from Elmer Fox & Co.

Exxon Co. will award Ronald K. King, a junior in accounting from Spanish Fork, a $600 scholarship. The final $600 scholarship will go to John E. Graden, a graduate student in accounting from Seattle, Wash. Graden's award is sponsored by Haskin & Sells.

Three honorary awards will go to outstanding senior and graduate students, Roger G. Jenkins, a senior from Phoenix, Ariz., will receive the Utah Association of Certified Public Accountants Award. Alan R. Andersen, a graduate student from Danville, Calif., will receive the outstanding student in Public Accounting Award. Glade K. Risenmay, a graduate student from Shelley, Idaho, will be given the Outstanding Student in Management Accounting Award.

Arthur Andersen & Co., an international accounting firm, will also present an outstanding teacher award to a faculty member. This award carried a $500 honorarium, said Reber.

Orators given cash awards

Three BYU students won cash prizes for their speeches in the Great Lives Manuscript Speaking Contest Thursday. Charles Hiley won $60 for first place, Holly Hicks won $30 for second and Ed Patterson won $10 for third.

Miss Hicks, a freshman in journalism from Pleasant Grove, Utah spoke on "Hugh B. Brown, The Measure of a Man." Hiley, a senior in speech communication from Salt Lake, entitled his speech "The Wolf That Never Sleeps," and Patterson, a sophomore in speech communication from Sacramento, Calif., used "Only A Scoutmaster" for his speech topic.

The intent of the contest was to teach students to use a manuscript without being uncomfortable. "I think the contest has done this," said Jodi Like, contest director.

Students entering the contest were required to write and read their own manuscript about the life of a person who had influenced them while a youth in the LDS church.

Both speech delivery and manuscript quality were judged. "The manuscript is judged on grammar, the overall appearance, sentence structure, clarity of ideas and vividness of words," said Kay Lyn Johnson, assistant director.

The oral presentation of the speech was judged on "adherence to the topic and presentation," Miss Johnson added.

Sixteen students originally entered the competition, but only eight participated according to Miss Like. "I think the turnout was excellent as far as the quality of the speeches, but in terms of quantity there was something to be desired."

She said the low turnout was understandable since the contest was so close to finals.

The first and second rounds of the contest were held Wednesday afternoon with the semi-final round Thursday morning and the final round Thursday afternoon. Five students were selected to compete in the semi-finals and three competed in the final round.

Dr. J. LaVar Bateman, professor of speech, is personally funding the cash prizes. He is in Europe with study abroad now, said Miss Like, so she was left in charge of the contest.

Mail office asks new addresses

Students who will be moving from their present address should file change of address cards with the Provo Post Office.

According to Mickey D. Snyder, superintendent of delivery and collections, in order for mail to be forwarded with the least amount of trouble the cards should be filed with complete old and new addresses.

When students return to Provo they should cancel the change of address cards and file their new addresses.

Snyder also suggested students notify magazine and newspaper publishers of any address change. These publications will only be forwarded for 90 days, and postage due will be charged for items sent out of Provo. All mail delivered incorrectly should be endorsed "moved" or "not here" and returned immediately, said Snyder.

Climbing safety advised

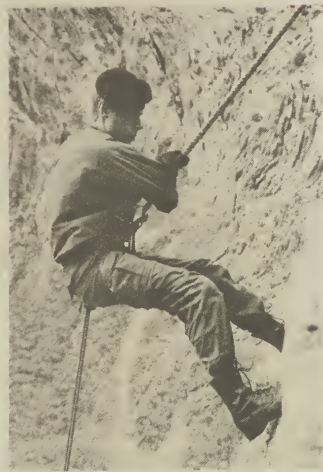

By LEDA TULLY
Universe Staff Writer

The fun of mountain climbing, experienced by many, can be lost if proper precautions are not taken.

According to Dave Webb, a member of the Utah County Mountain Rescue Unit, a climber goes to a potentially dangerous situation and through his own skills and knowledge renders it harmless. It's not the experienced climber that has accidents. It's those who are just trying it out and don't know anything, he said.

A lot of students find themselves away from home for the first time and decide they want to go rappelling instructed by someone whose techniques are not very good, said Kent Campton, mountain climbing instructor.

Most of the people that get into trouble in this area are deer hunters and BYU students who get into situations where they don't have sufficient skills or knowledge, or once had them, but have forgotten them. They feel they don't have to follow the rules because they are the exception to it, said Webb.

An ROTC cadet demonstrates proper mountain climbing form.

The mountains around Provo are crumbly and hard to climb and many inexperienced students don't realize this, said Webb.

Some cautions given to students by Webb and Campton new in the area are: Never go alone and always leave information of where you are going, when you are leaving, when you are coming back and who you are going with. Also only go with someone who is qualified.

Take more clothing than you think you will need. Mountains may be warm in the day, but get very cold at night. Wool clothing and a wind breaker or raincoat are recommended. One of the most dangerous killers is exposure said Campton. You can get this even in a 60-degree weather. Also wear shoes with support and rubber soles.

Carry enough food for any kind of unexpected situation and foods that will give you energy are good. Take water and waterproof matches. A first-aid kit might be needed. Don't think you can do without it.

Travel in groups of at least two or three. This way if one has an accident one can stay with him and the other can go get help.

Many students in a case of accident will contact their bishop or a friend. This way they lose time in saving the victim. They should immediately contact the Sheriff's department.

Some of the places students can go are Timpanogos in the summer, Silver Lake in American Fork Canyon, South Fork of Provo Canyon, Hobbie Creek in Spanish Fork, and the Salt Lake Mountains.

After more than 30 years of teaching at BYU, three music teachers will be retiring this semester.

Dr. A. Harold Goodman, chairman of the Department of Music, announced the retirement of Frederick N. Webb, music educator; Dr. Lawrence Sardoni, conductor and theory professor; and Dr. John R. Halliday, Oratorio Choir conductor and theory professor.

Webb will be retiring with over 40 years of teaching in the fields of music and speech. A graduate of BYU and the University of Utah, he is the recipient of numerous awards including the Pardee Wind Instrument Award, a scholarship to study with Graham Reed and Max Wald of the Chicago Music College.

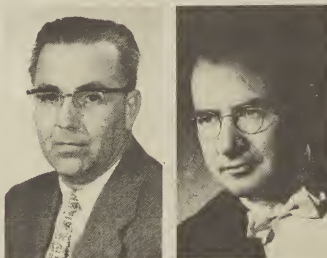

Webb has been a public school teacher in Tooele and Milford High Schools. He conducted the Carbon College A Cappella Choir for many years. Although retiring from BYU, he will continue to conduct church choirs and LDS productions.

As an assistant professor, Webb has been working in music education, teaching music for the elementary classroom teacher.

Exciting experience

"My 30 years of teaching have been a most exciting experience," Dr. Sardoni said. He said he has seen the "academic scholarship flower from average to a very high standard" and seen BYU "grow and develop from a small college to a major university in the world."

Dr. Sardoni now serves as director of the Symphony Orchestra and coordinator for private lessons for orchestral instruments. Although retiring from official teaching responsibilities today, Dr. Sardoni said he will be "on at BYU for several years as a private teacher for one semester each year." Also included in retirement plans are work on musical writings department," he said. "I've seen it grow from 3,000 up."

Under Dr. Sardoni's direction the first American performance of von William's "Pilgrim's Progress," an opera, was given at BYU in 1967 and "received world-wide press coverage."

Dr. Sardoni also served as conductor of the orchestra from 1947-1964. During this time he "initiated the out-of-state tours in the Western states and Canada." He has also been director of oratorio and conductor of the opera.

"Family trait"

Involvement with music is an inherited trait in the Sardoni household, he explained. His grandfather, C.J. Thomas, was one of the early Tabernacle Choir directors and directed the first orchestra of the old Salt Lake Theater. His mother is an accomplished pianist and his father was a concert violinist.

Dr. Sardoni plays all the stringed instruments, violin, viola, cello and bass, but claims a preference for the viola. "I have a particular affinity for the viola's tone quality," he smiled.

"Outstanding experiences" in 30 years at BYU revolve around his colleagues and students. "Teaching alongside colleagues who live up to the high standards of the church" has been a high point, he said.

"I appreciate the type of student I have been privileged to teach at BYU," he added. Dr. Halliday, who has been teaching at BYU for 42 years, can also remember when BYU was smaller. When he started to teach in 1934 there were only 52 faculty members. "Now we have many more than that in our

Girls in the band

During World War II the student body dropped to 2,000. "My tuba player was a girl," Dr. Halliday said, he recalled that the band was mostly made up of girls.

As director of BYU bands from 1943 to 1950, Dr. Halliday built the band program from 15 participants to three bands totaling over 225 players.

He also taught flying for five years during World War II before and after teaching school. He used to fly to guest conducting appointments "in all the Western states I've guest conducted," he said.

From 1948 to 1960 Dr. Halliday was the chairman of the Music Department and was acting dean of the College of Fine Arts for a year in 1947.

He organized the BYU Madrigal Singers (1952-1960) and toured with them over 40,000 miles throughout the United States and Canada including a visit to the White House where the group appeared before Mrs. Dwight Eisenhower and the cabinet member's wives.

During that time the group also made four commercial recordings and appeared in numerous radio and television performances.

Oratorio Choir

In 1961 Dr. Halliday organized the Oratorio Choir which has performed over 50 major works with orchestra or band. Numerous smaller works have had world-wide distribution on Relief Society Cultural Refinement recordings and on Sunday

Novel drama sweeps Emmys

JOE THOMAS
Staff Press Writer

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" swept the Emmy nominations for television Academy awards and Franklin, D. Roosevelt, was named for 16 Emmys. The weekly series, "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," placed first in nominations, followed by "The Waltons." CBS situation comedies "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" and "The Waltons" were nominated for 16 Emmys each. "The Mary Tyler Moore Show" was nominated for 16 Emmys, including Best Comedy Series, Best Actress (Faye Dunaway), Best Supporting Actress (Betty Garrett), Best Supporting Actor (Dick Martin), Best Music (John Williams), Best Writing (Allan Boyd), Best Directing (James Frawley), Best Editing (John Frawley), Best Production Designing (John Frawley), Best Costume Designing (John Frawley), Best Hair Styling (John Frawley), Best Makeup (John Frawley), Best Visual Effects (John Frawley), Best Sound (John Frawley), Best Music (John Williams), Best Writing (Allan Boyd), Best Directing (James Frawley), Best Editing (John Frawley), Best Production Designing (John Frawley), Best Costume Designing (John Frawley), Best Hair Styling (John Frawley), Best Makeup (John Frawley), Best Visual Effects (John Frawley), Best Sound (John Frawley).

"Phyllis." The nominees for lead actor in a comedy series were Jack Albertson of "Chico and the Man," Hal Linden of "Barney Miller," Alan Alda of "M-A-S-H" and Henry Winkler of "Happy Days." The nominees for leading actress in a dramatic series included two with cancelled shows — Anne Meara of "Kate McShane" and Brenda Vaccaro of "Sam." Also named were Angie Dickinson of "Police Woman" and Michael Learned of "The Waltons." Familiar gunshots appear as nominees for lead actor in dramatic series — Peter Falk in "Columbo," Karl Malden in "The Streets of San Francisco," James Garner in "The Rockford Files."

As did "Rich Man, Poor Man." The ABC dramatization of the Irwin Shaw novel scored nominations for its three leads — Nick Nolte, Peter Strauss and Susan Blakely. Edward Asner, better known as the gruff news director of "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," was nominated as lead actor in a single appearance for his role as the embittered, crippled father in "Rich Man, Poor Man." Also nominated in supporting categories were Ray Milland, Robert Reed, Dorothy McGuire, Kim Darby, Fimounla Flanagan and Kay Lenz from the novel dramatization. Asner was also nominated as supporting actor in "The Mary Tyler Moore Show," as was Ted Knight.

Sam show to be aired

A short documentary film about the origins of the American symbol, Uncle Sam, narrated by F.G. Marshall, will be seen on KBYU-TV 11 Wednesday at 8 p.m. "Uncle Sam: The Legend and the Man," provided by the Utah Board of Realtors, will be seen as part of the locally-produced program, "Perspective," which airs once a month on Channel 11. "Perspective" will also look at the chain of life and energy in the arid West in a segment featuring beautiful wildlife photography.

Spring concert planned for ROTC Footprints

The AFROTC singing group, Footprints of Freedom, will finish a busy and award-strung year with its annual Spring Concert. The popular patriotic coed singing group will present the concert Saturday at 8 p.m. in the de Jong Concert Hall, HFAC. Dr. H. Jarolde Harris of the Music Department, which co-sponsors the group, will be the director. Footprints, composed of 18 Air Force Cadets and 18 members of their support unit, Angel Flight, present a tri-media program of singing, dancing and slides that ranges from America's nostalgic past to the present.

Capt. Victor K. Krzymowski, adviser to the group, said their objective is to present a picture of the United States and her people and to help the audience catch the growing spirit of patriotism. A total of 27 songs will be performed in the final concert, including solos by Debbie Hansen singing "Together" by John Denver, Richard Adams, "Where is the Love" by Lionel Hart; Heidi Ellsworth, "People" by Jule Styne; Lhomond Jones, "My Day" by Dennis Crockett; Linda Payne, "Sometimes" by Henry Mancini; and Sandy Ord, "Freedom" by Robert Sherman.

Sue Neimoyer will play a piano solo "Realms and Reflections," by David Zabriske, and Wilma Wright, Colleen Harris, and De Ann Kempton will sing a trio "Five Foot Two," by Ron Henderson.

"Mother Country" by Jerry Liliedahl. Slides and movies will be shown as a background during some of the numbers. The Footprints have received several awards and recognitions in their busy semester. They just returned from a six-day tour of Arizona, California and Nevada where they performed before church groups, civic organizations, military bases and high school assemblies. They will be honored at a Bicentennial salute to NASA sponsored by the Utah Chapter of Air Force Assoc. in the Salt Lake Hilton on April 23.

Sue Neimoyer will play a piano solo "Realms and Reflections," by David Zabriske, and Wilma Wright, Colleen Harris, and De Ann Kempton will sing a trio "Five Foot Two," by Ron Henderson. Some of the other songs on the program include "Country Roads" by John Denver, "The Entertainer" by Scott Joplin, "Spinning Wheel" by David Thomas, "New World Ron Huff, Nineteen music majors were award recipients Thursday at the annual awards assembly. Robert Downs of the Music Department presented the awards.

The awards and their recipients were: outstanding musicianship, Jeff Shumway; music education, Barbara Lawrence; creative music, Murray Boren; Wakefield's vocal, Deborah Horne; vocal performance, Debra Bennett Mitchell; Wakefield's organ, David Chamberlin; organ performance, George

McClelland. Also, brass performance, Brian Daw, Wakefield's piano, Ann Bunker, orchestra, Glena Hadlock; Chamber orchestra, Ruth Monson; string performance, Janelle Davidson; string chamber, Bonnie Gesseli; and deJong organ, James Wallman.

Y choirs plan auditions today

Auditions for the A Cappella Choir, Male Chorus and Chamber Chorus, under the direction of Dr. Ralph Woodward will be held today, Monday and Tuesday. Each performing group is composed of music majors and non-majors alike, with an invitation to all interested students to audition. Sign-up sheets for appointments are located on the fourth floor in the E wing of the Harris Fine Arts Center.

Rock group sets concert

Members of the former rock group "London Bridge," now in an unnamed group, will be performing today at 5 p.m. in the ELWC Memorial Lounge. The group is auditioning for Magic Mountain in Southern California for a four a one-half month engagement. Members of the group include Bill Bacon, keyboard and arranger who has cut several records with "London Bridge"; Dave Clark, drums; Gary Lamph, lead guitarist, and Terry Ragnano, bass, formerly of "Wee Five." Sherry and Tammy Bacon are principal vocalists.

19 music majors get annual awards

Nineteen music majors were award recipients Thursday at the annual awards assembly. Robert Downs of the Music Department presented the awards.

The awards and their recipients were: outstanding musicianship, Jeff Shumway; music education, Barbara Lawrence; creative music, Murray Boren; Wakefield's vocal, Deborah Horne; vocal performance, Debra Bennett Mitchell; Wakefield's organ, David Chamberlin; organ performance, George

Y choirs plan auditions today

Auditions for the A Cappella Choir, Male Chorus and Chamber Chorus, under the direction of Dr. Ralph Woodward will be held today, Monday and Tuesday. Each performing group is composed of music majors and non-majors alike, with an invitation to all interested students to audition. Sign-up sheets for appointments are located on the fourth floor in the E wing of the Harris Fine Arts Center.

Rock group sets concert

Members of the former rock group "London Bridge," now in an unnamed group, will be performing today at 5 p.m. in the ELWC Memorial Lounge. The group is auditioning for Magic Mountain in Southern California for a four a one-half month engagement. Members of the group include Bill Bacon, keyboard and arranger who has cut several records with "London Bridge"; Dave Clark, drums; Gary Lamph, lead guitarist, and Terry Ragnano, bass, formerly of "Wee Five." Sherry and Tammy Bacon are principal vocalists.

McGowan, the defending champion, earned All-WAC honors last year after tying for sixth with teammate Mike Brannan. Brannan was third-team All-American last year after finishing 11th in the NCAA as a freshman. He toured Japan with a U.S.
All-Star team in December
and has won the Fresno Classic for the past two years.

Brannan, Reid and McGowan placed
one-two-three in the recent Fresno event. Another BYU
contender is Jim Nelford, who was fourth in the WAC last year. Nelford, who is the current Canadian Amateur champ, won the Pan American tournament this spring and tied with Reid for the Pacific Intercollegiate title.

The two other BYU entries on the Cougars' No. 1 team are John Fought, winner of the British Universities championship last summer, and former WAC champ Jim Blair. Blair is the defending Provo Open champ and Brannan won the Utah Open
last year.

Possible challengers

Utah and New Mexico have possible challengers in Roger Calvin and Brad Bryant. The Utes' Calvin was eighth in the WAC last year and Bryant of the Lobos was ninth. Both were All-WAC selections. As a freshman two years ago
Bryant finished 14th at the NCAA tournament.

A Weber State golfer with impressive credentials is Mike Malaska, the 1974 Utah Open winner. Colorado, 16th in the Pan American, is led by Kevin Spencer and Tom Woodward.

John Harris, goalie of the Y soccer team, will lead the Cougars against the Golden Spikers, a pro team, Tuesday on Haws Field.

Soccer team names line-up for game with professionals

The Cougars' line-up for their match with Utah's new professional soccer team, the Golden Spikers, was announced by Coach
Jim Dusara.

In this Tuesday's game at Haws Field on the BYU campus, John Harris will lead the Cougars against the Salt Lake-based pro franchise, Dusara said.

Harris, the team's goalie, is a newcomer from Fremont, Calif. The 19-year-old soccer stand-out will receive help from Carlos Amorim, Alvin Strait, and Emmanuel Adelke, who make up the defensive line-up.

A native of Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, Amorim plays the main sweeper or center back. Strait is from Needmore, Pa., and plays full-back, while Adelke, a newcomer from Nigeria,
plays right full-back.

The mid-field players are all from Latin America and Dusara said they are all good ball dribblers.

Enrique Rodriguez from Peru, Hugo Rodier from Chile, Salvatore Rubalcava from Mexico and John Did from Argentina form
the mid-field line.

Brig Ord of Menlo Park, Calif., will lead the attack as center forward, along with Varut Komalarjun from Thailand and George Spagonola of Calgary, Canada.

Rounding out the Cougar line-up are freshman Martin Barrera, from San Diego, Calif., who fills in at defense or mid-field;

Cliff Tabor, a transfer student from Las Vegas, Nev.; newcomer Daniel Peyerera of Argentina, Scott Cardon of Orem and Patrick Beccroft of Salt Lake, two defensive reserves, and Dan Ord, the back-up goalie.

Tuesday's match begins at 7 p.m. and tickets are a dollar for adults, 50 cents for students and children under are free. Tickets are available at the Marriott Center ticket office and from all BYU soccer players.

A new film, "Pele's New World," will be shown free to all ticket holders after the game, Dusara said. It will be shown at 9 p.m. in the Smith Fieldhouse.

The film is about Pele's new life as a professional soccer player in the United States. The Brazilian soccer star is considered by many to be the greatest soccer player to have ever lived. When he came to play for the New York Cosmos he sparked interest in soccer nationwide.

Dusara said interest in the sport is spreading rapidly here in Utah. He added that Provo High and Orem High will square off in a game at 5:30 p.m. before the Cougar-Spiker contest.

"They say a 1,000 high school kids are coming to the game," he continued.

Ballpark criticized by Yanks

NEW YORK (AP) --
"Catfish" Hunter, gnawing on a jawful of tobacco, looked around his locker and saw only an inch-thick carpet,
purple and immaculately
clean.

"The spittoon - where's the spittoon," he said.
"We'll have to have some spittoons," said Manager Billy Martin, "but until we get 'em
the guys will just have to use cans or something."

"No place to hang my clothes," Hunter grumbled.
He looked inside his locker and saw an upholstered bench built into the wall. "Can't sit on this thing," he said.
"Gotta have a stool."

The New York Yankees got introduced to their new baseball home Wednesday.
They held an off-day workout for Thursday's formal opening of the restructured Yankee Stadium, a face-lifting job that reportedly cost the city between $50 and $100 million.

"It's beautiful," they exclaimed, "but..."

Elevators to the Yankee headquarters were on the blink. The tele screen on the new scoreboard - the electronic marvel that shows instant replays, cartoon characters and exploding fireworks - isn't ready yet.

There are humps in the outfield and there's a sharp drop in the terrain just back of third and first bases - topographical flaws that had Martin calling for the grounds keepers.

"Oh well," he said philosophically. "We still got a few little things to be fixed.
It'll all be done in time."

wheelchair athletes can for regional's

Wheelchair athletes, Brinkman and Mikson will face their challenge April 29 at 2 when they will meet the best wheelchair athletes from western regional's in California.

Brinkman has a problem in the regionals is finances," Johnson said. "It will take about $1,000 between us for the five days of competition."

Support seems to be building for Utah's two representatives in the competition. Some Utah Valley stores have donated a javelin, a discus and a measuring tape to help the athletes in their goals to go to the nationals in New York in mid-June.

Johnson said tax-deductible contributions may be mailed to the Utah Wheelchair Athletic Association at 80 E. 1000 South, Orem.

"What we're really trying to do is show other people in wheelchairs in Utah (both men and women) that athletic competition is very good physically as well as mentally," Brinkman said.

Gold medals

The two athletes won first-place gold medals in five of the six events they entered over the weekend at the Northwest-Rocky Mountain Wheelchair Games in Englewood, Colo.

Johnson, gold medalist for first place in the javelin (53-76), 100-yard dash (21.1), wheelchair slalom (1:26.0) and the 880-yard run (3:35.0) and second place in table tennis, received a trophy as the outstanding male athlete at the games. He qualified for nationals in all five events he entered.

Brinkman, who hopes to break the national record in the mile, won the mile race with a time of 7:08 in the mile-high altitude. The national record is 6:46. He also won a bronze medal for third in the 100-yard dash. Mechanical problems with his wheelchair prevented him from entering other events. In California he will received the outstanding male wheelchair athlete last weekend.

The Daily Universe

OPINION—COMMENT

Brigham Young University

Cheers and tears hail last Universe

The final issue of the Daily Universe each semester is greeted with normal yawns by most BYU students. But for the outgoing staff, it is greeted with a cheer, followed by a few tears.

The cheer is for a glorious end to some very inglorious work, and the tears are for an unhappy end to some very happy friendships.

Universe staffers sometimes feel they could produce a good newspaper if everyone else would leave them alone. But that is not exactly fair. Actually, deep down, they appreciate all the complaints from readers and sources because they indicate someone cares.

No, probably what makes the work most inglorious is that the staffers see so clearly the goals they would like to reach, but are unable to devote their full efforts to reach them. Those other classes just seem to keep getting in the way. When the semester ends, this frustration ends.

Too, no one is acutely aware of the errors in the Daily Universe as the reporter who must call back a source and apologize. Still, apologies and retractions never quite compensate for the glaring, headlined errors. The end of the semester means an end to having errors published for all the BYU audience to see.

These are only some of the reasons for cheers. But there are an equal number of reasons for a few tears. The Daily Universe would never get on the stands if it weren't for several advisers and a team of staffers putting in the extra-mile effort.

Credit is also due to the production crew at the University Press, for sometimes toiling late into the wee hours of the morning in an effort to get the paper delivered on time.

Despite the pressure of deadlines, there is an amazing nurturing feeling in the Daily Universe newsroom. Many close friendships develop. The end of the semester often means an end to these relationships.

But after the last letter to the editor is critiqued and the last source is assuaged, the staff must say thanks to BYU faculty and students. The opportunity to serve is appreciated.

Y tuition increase low in comparison

Money is the constant concern of the average college student: money to pay the rent, money to buy the groceries, money to buy books and money to pay tuition.

To the poor college student who lives by the penny and sweats out each bank statement, hoping he hasn't miscalculated and overdrawn his account, a $40 increase in the yearly tuition can seem like a major disaster.

But BYU students should take heart. Next year's tuition costs will be greater than this year's by $20 a semester, but the rise is small compared to other universities around the country.

According to the March 1 issue of U.S. News and World Report, tuition at Columbia University, New York City, has gone up $310 a year, bringing total tuition to a yearly $3,990.

Southern Methodist University in Dallas, Tex., has risen $330 bringing the total tuition up to $2,530 a year. The University of Miami, Coral Gables, Fla., has risen $400 a year, bringing that total up to $3,300.

Princeton University in New Jersey has also risen $400 for the coming year — making a total yearly tuition of $4,300.

In the face of these figures, BYU's $40 tuition increase to $720 a year for members of the LDS Church seems small, even tolerable.

The LDS Church subsidizes each church member at BYU to the tune of 70 per cent of the cost of their education — a noteworthy amount.

As the cost of gaining an education increases, the worth of the "scholarship" given each BYU student will also go up.

BYU students should recognize that education at BYU is a bargain.

Death penalty question facing Supreme Court

The Supreme Court began deliberations last week on the constitutionality of the death penalty.

The lives of 648 people on death rows in 30 states depend on the decision, which will be based on arguments heard the week before.

It has been four years since the decision in Furman v. Georgia, when the court ruled the penalty unconstitutional. Most of the justices objected to the fact that judges and juries were arbitrary in deciding who should live and who should die.

Since the 1972 decision, 34 states have amended their laws to satisfy these objections. The present cases being argued before the court represent a cross section of these new legislative approaches to capital punishment.

As with many previous cases in our nation's history, these cases present a conflict of rights — the right against cruel and unusual punishment and the right of a society to be protected.

Lawyers for the convicted men claim the death penalty is an insensate lottery and thus unconstitutional under the Eighth Amendment of the U.S. Constitution. They claim there is no rational standard for application of the penalty, that indeed nothing has changed since the Furman decision.

On the other side, lawyers for the states claim the penalty should not be banned, as it acts as a deterrent to crime, prevents repetitive criminal acts and protects society. In deciding these cases the court has three options. First the justices can repeat the arbitrary application opinion of the Furman case. Such a decision would then lead to more new legislation by the states, beginning the present judicial cycle once more.

Second the court can rule the penalty unconstitutional.

Third the court can establish a national standard of constitutional application, clearing state involvement in the judicial realm.

Ultimately for the 648 persons on death rows, for those who might follow them and for the U.S. citizenry at large, the second and third options provide the most workable solution. Surely we have a right against further indecision by the Supreme Court.

Press, trial rights at odds

The decision of Nebraska judge, soon to be reviewed by the U.S. Supreme Court, has once again put the free press on trial.

During the murder trial of Erwin Charles Simants, Lincoln County District Court Judge Hugh Stuart issued a new well-known "gag" order. The order barred the press from reporting many details of the slaying of a 16-year-old girl. Simants' preliminary hearing and jury selection — even though conducted in open court.

Newspapers and press associations throughout the country have reacted strongly to Judge Stuart's decision.

The American Newspaper Publishers Association, in a brief sent to the Supreme Court, urged that the order be reversed in the interest of a free people dependent upon a free press.

To insure the free and uncensored flow of information to the public, newspapers and their employees must be free to report happenings in their communities, particularly events taking place in the courtroom, without censorship or "gag" rules, the association stressed.

The argument may come down to a conflict between the First and Sixth Amendments. The First Amendment guarantees the right of a free press.

The Sixth Amendment guarantees the right to a fair trial.

Many in the legal profession fear extensive coverage in the press can bias the outcome of a trial. If the right of an accused to a fair trial, which right shall prevail?

Newspapers, carefully guarding their "extension of the eyes and ears of the public," affirm that the need for an public overrides possible infringement of the rights of the individual. Those involved in the judicial system earnestly argue that majority right not be allowed to modify the individual.

Whatever decision is ultimately the on-going debate of free press trial rights, that decision will impact on the general public. For it perhaps the public — and not the lawyers — have the final say in the matter. —Rich

Views told on press, Four Seasons

The unsigned editorial opinions on this page are the opinion of the Daily Universe Editorial Board. Signed editorials express opinions that Universe editors feel to be worthy of note. Letters to the editor represent the viewpoint of the writer.

The Universe is grateful for the letters received this semester. An attempt has been made to present a representative group of the letters.

Letters that are to be submitted to the spring term Universe should be double- or triple-spaced, typed on one side of the paper and should contain the name and hometown of the writer, as well as the writer's signature. Letters should be kept short, around 250 words, and all letters submitted are subject to condensation. Letters should be brought or mailed to Student Publications, 538 ELWC.

Up with Four Seasons

Editor:

If anyone is concerned about wasting resources, they should also be concerned about supporting the Four Seasons ski project.

We know that we must make better use of the things we have. Just how useful is the valley behind Y mountain now?

Some cry about spoiling the natural beauty of that spot. Do those same people make frequent trips up Rock Canyon to admire that natural beauty? How many people go up there regularly to see the natural beauty? Would fewer skiers enjoy the spot than nature lovers do now? Are ski lifts and ski lodges all that ugly?

Would having a train taking people up by Rock Canyon cut down on the number of people that could go see that area? Would being able to take a ski lift up to the peaks worsen a person's view of the area?

Then there are the economic and employment opportunities advantages to be considered. Does trying to keep the community free from undesirable justifications continual retardation of Provo's progress? Are the Saints who live in the evil places as California exempt from salvation?

We ought to put more emphasis on utility rather than on uncertain predictions of doom caused by letting more people visit Mormon country.

U.S. press out of control

Editor:

Concerning Monday's "great lesson in patriotism": I agree with Nelson Wadsworth, that this highly realistic marvel of authenticity portrayed in stark realism the "greatness" of the Washington Post, and the rest of the media. I think that the so-called "Watergate scandal" showed very well what the Post and other press is great for — the "greatness" of the Washington Post, and the rest of the media. which still lingers to this day." This is precisely what happened to Nixon, and is still happening, thanks to our fearless (or at least heedless) press.

Former journalist, Elder Loren C. Dunn had this to say at the Jan. 20 devotional assembly: "Future historians may look back on the Watergate period as the time in the history of the United States when the press as an institution emerged as all-powerful, yet without enough internal moral restraints to keep it from becoming a matter of concern to almost everyone." Later on "Some of it, true, has been good journalism and has made a healthy contribution. Some, however, would have been termed yellow journalism only a few years ago."

Quoting renowned author-journalist Roscoe Drummond, he said of the media: "They illegally publish leaks from grand jury proceedings, thereby condemning a person before he is accused. They unethically publish leaks from prosecution assistants who want to try their case in the press before they take it to court. They demand a total constitutional shield for the privacy of their sources, even when the shield conflicts with the equal constitution right of a fair trial."

I fail to see any great patriotism exhibited by brushing the constitution aside and impeaching Nixon in the media instead of the courts. The press, while trying to show the tyranny of President Nixon, became the greatest tyrant itself.

Yes, the film "All the President's Men" certainly does lay bare the precarious line America straddled between freedom and tyranny — by tripping over it.

Placed on 'don't like' list: traffic lights, parking,...

There seems to be an unwritten rule at BYU that says: Don't criticize anything for any reason.

Having a negative attitude is equated with downing puppies, apostasy, laughing when a little kid's kite chewed up by a tree or breathing heavy at the Walt Disney movie.

Nevertheless, there are some things that I just can't seem to feel good about, even though I've made an honest effort.

So today, I decided — fully realizing what it might do to my standing in the community — to spill my guts and list the ten people, places and things I don't like. So, as Jackie Gleason used to say, "And away we go!"

1. I don't like slow, fat joggers who run on the inside lane of the University track. It makes life very difficult for budding Jim Ryuns like myself.

2. I don't like the soap spigots in the men's locker room in the Smith Fieldhouse because they rarely have soap in them. Come to think of it, on those rare occasions when I have been able to get soap out of the spigots, I didn't like the soap because it gave me the hives.

3. I don't like people who pop their bubble gum when I'm trying to study in the library. 4. I don't like the timing of the traffic lights on campus. In order to drive across campus without getting stopped at a light, I have to drive 86 m.p.h. For that reason, I think I'm on BYU Security's "don't like" list.

5. I don't like paying two cents for a tab of margarine in the cafeteria.

6. I don't like trying to find a parking space in a B zone after 8:30 a.m.

7. I don't like the Y on the side of the hill, the tree of knowledge in the field of library, and horrors, I'm not too crazy about the Centennial.

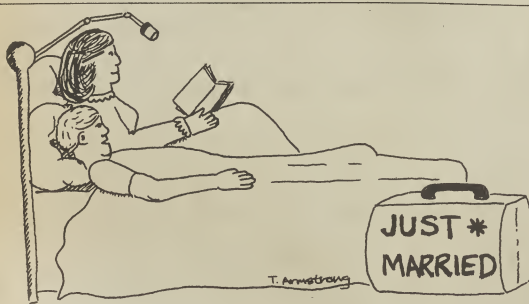

8. I don't like people who mail their 50-page term papers at the copying machine without letting them have a chance machine.

9. I don't like the clod who runs my Volkswagen in the HFA car park took off without leaving a note.

10. And, finally, I do not like faculty members, and others who leave the Wilkinson Center elevators at floor and get off at the third floor, people severely test my claim in basically nice person.

Now that it is all over, I feel I have said it. My next job is to tell the anonymous hate mail I'm sure I can see it now. The letters will be sent to the Wilkinson Center elevators at floor and get off at the third floor, people severely test my claim in basically nice person.
